Allied Unions Asked to Donate "War Chest" to Aid Striking Shopmen By WEBSTER K. NOLAN. International News Service.

Organized labor, mobilizing for what easily may be its greatest struggle, today began the massing of a huge "war chest" to support the railroad shopcrafts in their nationwide strike.

While union leaders throughout the country were preparing to issue the formal call for raising a gigantic strike fund, officials of the Order of Railroad Conductors today flatly predicted that tens of thousands of train service employes in all classes will be forced to quut their posts if the railroads continue to operate crippled
